Tuesday, December 11, 2018

- Warm-up

- The amount of annual rainfall in a certain region is known to be $6^{2}$ normally distributed random variable with a mean of 50 inches and a standard deviation of 4 inches if the rainfall exceeds 57 inches during the year, it leads to floods. Find the probability

Worksheet to Practice

